“Remote work has been an amazing experience! I was a little nervous about the transition from office life to working from home but being properly equipped made it easier. I love being able to home with my family and I definitely do not miss the long commute! Be sure to check out products that can make your remote work life easier. ”

Jonathan Pisetti
Marketing Specialist

“At first I was nervous about how much work I would be able to get done working from home. I didn’t realize just how productive I was from my home office. There were surprising less distractions and I was able to get so much done! My advice for you to being productive while working from home would be to stay connected with your team as much as possible. ”

ECO-SMART SWAPS!

With all the extra time you will be spending at home it is important to stay eco-friendly. There are many tips and tricks to make your house more eco-smart.

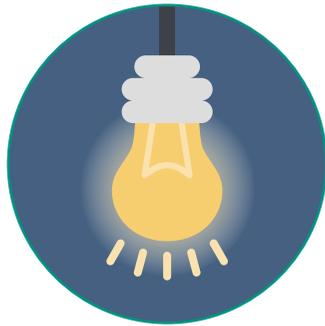

Here are 10 simple eco-friendly things you can do around your house to better the environment!

10 SIMPLE, ECO-SMART SWAPS

Switch to premium LED bulbs

They use less energy and last 25 times longer than standard bulbs. Plus, they produce less heat and give off true and natural light.

Savings: Uses 82% less energy than an incandescent.

Go Low-Flow

Taking a shorter shower is a good move, but a smarter showerhead is an easier switch.

Savings: Up to $70 a year on your water bill!

On-Demand Lights

Add a motion sensor to your outdoor fixtures and any less-visited places in your house.

Fix a Drip

A drop per second wastes 192 gallons per month! First, try tightening all. No luck? Replace gaskets and O rings. If all else fails, call the plumber.

Cool It

A typical heater is set to warm household water to 140°F, but 120°F is just fine.

Savings: $12 to $30 a year!

Shut the Fridge Door

Know before you go. An open door wastes cool air.

Savings: 7% of your fridge's total energy use!

Wiser Window Treatments

Trade your blinds for cellular and honeycomb to help you keep heat in during winter - and out during summer.

Aim for 78

Switch to a programmable thermostat and set it to that magic number.

Savings: 40% on cooling costs!

Power Down

When not in use, electronics still draw electricity. Plug your biggest gadgets into a UL-certified power strip - then flip the switch before bed.

Savings: Up to $100 on your energy bill annually!

A Cold Cycle

Washing clothes in cold water can slash water-heating costs - and don't worry, everything will still get clean.

Savings: Up to $40 a year!

PREPARING FOR REMOTE WORK

With all the changes happening due to the coronavirus many companies are switching to remote work. Many businesses want their employees to start working from home. While there are many benefits to working remotely it can be very scary for those who have never done it. You may feel unprepared for the transition. Here are some tips on how to prepare you and your team for remote work.

Keep a schedule

Your first instinct when you start working from home is you can work whenever and however you want. While flexibility is a major perk of working from home, it is very important to have a strict schedule. Having habits and structure is a great way to keep yourself focused and motivated. Simple things like waking up at the same time, creating to-do lists, and managing your work the same way is great for making the transitions as smooth as possible. Obviously, your routine will change but it's all about finding that perfect balance.

Create a dedicated workspace

It's important to distinguish work from home. It may be easy to wake up, grab your computer and start your day from your comfy bed, but that can lead to disaster. If you start work from places in your home that you correlate with relaxation, you will start having difficulty separating work from home. Try working from a dedicated office or workplace. Find a place with little distractions and enough space to actually do work. Make sure everyone in your house understands that your new dedicated workplace is for work. To be the most successful remote worker you need to learn to separate work from home.

Manage your time

When you start working from home you won't have a supervisor constantly watching over you. You are now responsible for your own time management. Strong communication between you and your team will make this easier. Checking in occasionally with your supervisor is a great way to keep you on track, and then up to date on what you are working on. You need to be able to manage your time effectively and stay focused. Some tips to help you effectively manage your time are making a checklist, schedule breaks, daily check-ins, and have an organized workflow.

Be properly equipped

When you start working from home it is important you have all the proper equipment. Make sure you have a clean workplace in your home. Your home office is now your new office so be sure to grab the essentials. It can be tricky trying to find exactly what you need to start working from home. That is why we created these three remote work kits just for you.

We hope this helpful guide helps you be more prepared for remote work. We wish you the best of luck on your journey of working from home and hope you enjoy it!
